EJACULATION,

To the Memory of Mrs. G. APTHORP.

FRIEND of my life! thro' growing youth endear'd,
In death beloved, in waning age revered—
If in a guardian Angel's form divine,
O'er my dark days thy melting mercies shine;
The MUSE shall charm thee, and each scene renew,
With tints reflected, and with touches true.

While o'er this breast the shades of MEMORY flow,
While the heart sickens with unsated woe,
While sharp unkindness bends her piercing frown,
To cut the deeply-wounded spirit down,

Each opening day, on morn's returning wing,
Shall to my soul, thy placid virtues bring:
That voice by every law of kindness strung,
That heart with warm affection ever young,
Those cares unwearied e'en in life's decline,
That twin'd their bliss round every joy of mine,
Whence rose that smile, and whence that raptured gaze,
Whose look was bounty, whose expression praise.
When others, heedless of the bursting blow,
Saw the heart bleed, and bade the sorrow flow,
I felt thy love the wrongs of fate atone,
Restore my hopes but make my grief its own,
Nor yet to ONE were all thy cares confin'd,
But pour'd their stream on every suffering mind;
Who rear'd yon Orphans with a parent's care?
Or taught the hard oppressor's hand to spare*?
When many a tear had worn his cheek in vain,
Who broke the pining captive's ponderous chain?
Warm'd at the view, a thousand voices join
"Thine was the deed the godlike blessing thine."

While on the flight of time these steps attend,
Oft may thy visionary shade descend;
Come, like thyself, with every native grace,
That deck'd the form, and smooth'd the pleasing face
O'er my still couch, with healing wing appear,
Calm the quick sigh, and hush the impatient fear;
Yet round thy child with fond protection move,
And wake the converse of maternal love—
Give her, like thee, with virtue's heavenly ray,
To trace the desart of her future day,
Teach her with patient silence to endure
Those ills which grief, nor hope, nor time, can cure,
She far divided from thy parting breath,
Nor closed the eye, nor smooth'd the couch of death,
Yet many a breast, with kind compassion fraught,
Bore thy best blessing on the wing of thought,
From foreign hearts the sacred relic flow'd,
A foreign lip the precious pledge bestow'd.

But short the hour, and soon the moment dies,
Ere to thy throne the filial spirit flies,
Forget each pang, each sorrow, and each strife,
That pierced with many a thorn the nerve of life;
Taught to forgive, to pity, and to spare,
It pours on every wound the balm of prayer;
Plucks from the cruel heart its keen distress,
And feels the first great blessing is TO BLESS.

MEMOIRS

Of the House of Savoy, with some account of the Court of Sardinia.

THE sudden aggrandisement and speedy decline of the house of Savoy, is a problem only to those unacquainted with its history.

The rocks of Mount Cenis proved as lucrative formerly to the Princes of Piedmont, as the sound does at present to the Kings of Denmark. During the long and bloody wars, between the houses of Bourbon and Austria, this turnpike road into Italy was frequented by each of them, and a toll regularly levied on the favored army. Nay, if we believe history, it was actually put up to auction, and let to the highest bidder.

Little states, as they possess no real physicial strength, provided they enter the vortex of European intrigue, must accustom themselves to a certain degree of political elasticity, and their governors must frequently appear in the humiliating but necessary character of perpetual balance masters. In short, it is by a change of position alone that they can preserve their equilibrium, and prevent a sudden subversion.

It was owing to this policy, that the petty Counts of Maurienne became Dukes of* Savoy, and the Dukes of Savoy Kings of Sardinia. It is in consequence of a departure from such a system, that this newly created royalty has been recently shorn of its rays, and after rising in splendour, at the beginning of the present century, (1718) seems but too likely to be subjected to a temporary eclipse, if not doomed to set at last in blood and disgrace.

THE GOVERNMENT

Is despotic, therefore military. The officers wield the law at the end of their canes. They are assisted by a numerous clergy, in order to keep the people in ignorance, which, in such a case, is another name for slavery. In Savoy alone, there were six different colleges, exclusively appropriated to, what it is the fashion to term, "theology." There are no less than five Archbishops, twenty-eight bishops, forty-four Abbots, and Monks and Nuns innumerable. Their revenues were immense; but a Savoyard, like a Welch curate, is allowed to starve on 15l. per annum.

Lettres de cachet are as common in Turin, as they were formerly at Versailles; they have their bastiles too, and the term habeas corpus is unknown in any law dictionary on this side of the Alps. In the Leggee constituzioni di sa Maesta, promulged in 1770, there is a whole chapter on the torture!

DOMINIONS AND POPULATION.

| Countries. | Chief Cities. |
|---|---|
| Piedmont | Turin |
| Savoy | Chamberry |
| Monserrat | Casal |
| Alessandrine | Alexandria |
| Oneglia | Oneglia |
| Island of Sardinia | Cagliari |

I omit the kingdoms of Cyprus and Jerusalem, although his Majesty includes them in his titles, and even quarters them in his armorial bearings. The inhabitants do not exceed three millions two hundred thousand souls.

TAXES.

Turin, like Paris before the revolution, is subject to an impost on all commodities entering and leaving the city, to a per centage on the income, or in other words, the industry of the inhabitants; and also to a capitation.

The taxes levied in the provinces are as numerous as amongst us, and still more vexatious than our excise laws. In addition to the territorial imposts, is a duty on silk worms, the staple of Piedmont, and another on the mulberry tree, which is the indispensable food of this profitable insect. The trees are taxed by the foot, and five sols for each twelve inches of admeasurement must be paid before the peasant crops a single leaf. Another tax, is a lottery, of that kind, called in Italy Loto di Genoa; this, as with us, is a voluntary contribution, raised on the passions of the people, at the expence of their morals. The Catholic prince, who governs this country, also permits the monks to dispose of tickets of about four lire, or six shillings each, on their own account, thus happily blending avarice and devotion together.

REVENUE.

Piedmont produces near 850,000l. sterling a year. The taxes now raised on the people of England, amounting to almost sixty shillings a piece, affect them less than the five and six-pence a head, levied on the former; and yet, prejudice apart, their soil and climate are both superior to our own, and the country abounds with articles for manufacture. Still, however, the Piedmontese are the favored nation, for the other territories are treated with a certain degree of contempt, and their viceroys, judges, and all public officers, even to the hangman, are invariably natives of Piedmont. Savoy, which, besides breeding multitudes of black cattle, exports radishes and chesnuts, and furnishes Paris with chimney-sweepers, and London with grinders of music, formerly transmitted 150,000l. sterling to the Royal Treasury; since it has assumed the name of Mont Blanc, England has amply indemnified this loss, by means of a subsidy of 200,000l. a year.

The island of Sardinia has been greatly neglected—does not pay for its own government.

The expences of the state are at present ruinous in the extreme; the difference between the income and the expenditure, is supplied by an emission of paper money, "De par le Roy."

The late king left his coffers full; but what is termed a monstrous deficit at Turin, (perhaps ten millions sterling) took place before the war, and that deficit occurred during a profound tranquility, and under a most excellent administration!

TROOPS.

The peace establishment is 22,000; in time of war usually 30,000; during the present contest, upwards of 40,000. Of these, one fourth are at this moment prisoners to the French.

The number of subaltern and superior commanders is so disproportionate to that of men, that there is said to be an officer for every four privates. The generals in the army list amount to about three hundred, and there no less than one hundred and fifty officers in the legion of cavalry alone.

MARINE.

As the corps of cavalry at Naples presents the spectacle of horses without riders, so the naval establishment of Sardinia exhibits a marine corps without men of war. There were indeed two frigates launched a few years ago, but they have not been heard of during the present contest. The are perhaps rotting in Cagliari!

After this statement, the disasters of the war will perhaps appear the less surprising. The Austrians defended Piedmont with vigour: it was the frontier to the Milanese; but the moment they were defeated by the French impetuosity, the unpopularity of the government, the operation of the deficit, and, above all, the want of a common cause on the part of the people, shewed that the government was inadequate to the resistance of a foreign enemy. The throne of a king totters from the moment he separates his own interests from those of his people!

The king of Sardinia, Victor Amadeus III. is the oldest monarch in Europe: he is now 70 years of age, for he was born June 26, 1726. While yet Duke of Savoy, he applied to the reform of the laws with a laudable industry, and actually promulged a new code, which, like that of most other States, is more commendable in theory than in practice. The example given him by his father was not calculated to increase his natural humanity. Charles Emanuel III. who was what is termed a great warrior, on beholding a field of battle strewed with dead men and horses, exclaimed, Poveri Cavalli! This was a phrase fit only for a king of the Houynhymns!

His present majesty, in one thing, and it nearly interests his subjects—differs essentially from his predecessor. The former was so economical, as to be accused of avarice; the latter is profuse to a proverb; being, like our own James I. addicted to show and dissipation. He has been known to create twenty Lords, or, as they are there termed, gentlemen of the bedchamber, in one week. His chamberlains, with leaden keys, nicely gilded, and suspended from empty pockets, are innumerable; there is not a court in Europe where there are more ribbands! It is impossible to cross the esplanade at Turin without jostling against a cross of St. Maurice. His majesty is also passionately attached to the military; and three fourths of his annual income has been constantly absorbed by the army. He has generals and colonels enough for manœuvring an army of one hundred thousand men. He also maintains skeleton regiments, but the skeletons consist of officers alone. The pay indeed is trifling; but then the uniforms are so very brilliant, it is impossible for an Italian count to resist the temptation of ruining himself, under so handsome a suit of regimentals.

His majesty, like his father, has perhaps exhibited too much partiality towards Piedmont. Savoy, the original appanage of the family, has been always treated with jealousy and distrust; and as for Sardinia, which to the title of king adds the very unroyal revenue of a sum we not unfrequently behold at the bottom of the rent-roll of an English esquire; it is become a place of exile for those banished from other States. The very officers and soldiers sent thither are often destined to that service, not as a duty, but as a punishment. Neither a Sardinian nor Savoyard is allowed to exercise any employment in the place of his nativity. After this, is it surprizing that the one province is become a French department; that the other has been in open insurrection during the last twelve months; and that from neither of them does his majesty draw any more revenue at this moment, than from his ideal kingdom situated in the Holy Land!

The king's passion for military men has been already mentioned. This extends to minute objects, such as the cut of a coat, the colour of a facing, the form of an epaulet, and the shape of a button. In 1791, Victor Amadeus collected all the drummers in the kingdom, in the casernes, or barracks of Turin; and their branch of military music was carried, in consequence of this, to a higher pitch of perfection than it had ever attained before. This however will cease to appear wonderful, when it is observed, that his majesty, in person, superintended their progress daily; and that Pregnani, the best violin player in Italy, instructed the whole corps. The result was, that the drums of the capital of Piedmont excel, even to this very day, those of Vienna and Berlin; and that the leader of the band at the Opera house was dubbed a captain.

Regal sympathy, family connections, and large subsidies, have produced wonderful changes since the grand reform of drums; and a great part of Piedmont is, at this moment, in the possession of the French, either as a pledge or a conquest! The king of Sardinia, imitating the customary policy of his ancestors, has already begun to treat with the conqueror; the citadel, the five impregnable bastions, the memory of the ineffectual siege of 1706, and, still more than any of these, the policy of humbling a formidable enemy will all operate in his favor; and after obtaining a portion of the Milanese, he may yet bully Genoa into loans, and Geneva into submission, like his illustrious progenitors of blessed memory.

THE PRINCE OF PIEDMONT.

Charles Emanuel Frederick Maria, is a most excellent prince, whose conduct might serve as a model to all the heirs apparent in Europe. The cardinal de Gardel, an enlightened clergymen, was his tutor; but he has preferred a layman for his confident. He has uniformly interferred, but always with the utmost deference and submission, in favour of the Sardinians and Savoyards. He has also, with equal uniformity, opposed the present war, notwithstanding his marriage to the sister of Louis XVI. and it was he who, in a familiar conversation with his royal father, when speaking of the irresistible progress of opinions, exclaimed,—"Ceux qui ont envie de regner, n'ont qu'a se depecher."

He never surveys the houses of Turin, cut down, Procrustes-like, to one common standard, without a sigh.

THE DUKE D'ROSTE

Resembles the king his father, who has carved a patrimony for him out of the prophecy of the church. This, in Italy, is termed, "paring the the Pope's nails."

We preceded them at that sport, and our Henry VIII. brandished the scissars with wonderful dexterity.

THE DUKES DE MONTFERRAT, GANEVOIS, AND COUNT DE MAURIENNE.

These three princes were reckoned well educated, until the appearance of the duke d'Angoulemé and his brother the duke of Berry, (the ci-devant count d'Artois, now Monsieur's sons) at the court of Turin. The superiority of the French princes is said to have been at once visible and offensive, in respect to every thing, but the repetition of Ave-Marias and Pater-nosters.

THE DUKE DE CMABLAIS,

The king's half brother, dabbles in commerce; but any one who dared to term his royal highness a merchant, would be put in irons, and punished with the bastinado. He married his own niece, with the consent of the court of Rome; and during the very same year, three marriages of citizens with brothers' daughters, were annulled in Piedmont; and the Pope excommunicated the parties from the apostolic chair. Sans argent, point de salut.

PRINCESSES.

Adelaide Clotilda Xaviere de France, princess of Piedmont, loves her husband, and gained the affections of the people by learning Italian, which she speaks with fluency.

Maria Theresa of Austria, duchess of Aoste, is young, handsome, and attached to Germany.

Maria Anne Caroline Gabrielle de Savoy, the consort of the duke of Chablais, respects the duke infinitely; she still considers him as her uncle.

Marie Felicite, born 1760, and who, if she were not sister of a king, might be fairly termed an old maid—is likely to remain so.

She is the victim of the family pride of her father, who would marry her to none but a crowned head.

The monks have persuaded her that a nich in Paradise could alone be obtained by founding a convent.

Alas! her nieces, Marie Josephina Louisa, titular queen, and Maria Theresa, madame of France, by courtesy, are at this very moment in want of an asylum. To succour their distresses, would be more beneficent in the sight of heaven, and more seemly in the eyes of men, than the endowment of a score of nunneries!

GEORGE-TOWN (Maryland) Sept. 13.

A letter from Philadelphia to a gentleman in ——

September 7, 1796.

Winchester, a considerable inland town of Virginia, is situated in the valley of the Shenandoah, so called from the river of the same name which unites its waters with those of the Potomac, just before it enters the passage, between the mountains. Jefferson has given a fine description of this picturesque scenery, which that passage exhibits. The direct road to Philadelphia, passes along this delightful valley, which extends to Lancaster, and of which Brissot in his travels through the United States, gave some account, though he did not visit it. By inclining a little to the left, you cross the mountain which bounds the valley to the W. and arrive at Bath, or the Warm Springs of Berkley, 5 miles distant from the Potomac.

As this has become a place of fashionable resort, a short account of it may not be unintersting. The situation is in a small valley, which extends nearly from S. to N. and is not more than three or four hundred yards wide. The distance from Alexandria, the Federal City, and George-town, is about 100 miles.—The springs issue from the foot of the hill or mountain on the west, which is pretty high and steep—they form so considerable a stream as to turn a mill within a few rods. The water is perhaps something below the temperature of new milk. At first it is not generally relished as drink, but in a few days it is taken in quantities that are almost incredible. Every person repairs to the spring, where two boys are stationed, and hand tumblers of water with much expertness. There is a house with five convenient baths, which are filled from the spring by means of trunks. The water is easily let out, and thus fresh water is furnished to each company, or each individual.

The number of persons who frequent this place is ascertained, from a book in which each person's name is inserted upon arrival there, and one dollar is contributed and applied to keeping the Baths, &c. in repair, and ornamenting the adjacent ground with walls and trees. The principal spring is beneath the shade of two spreading oaks—Seats are provided and you see them occupied by groups of ladies and gentlemen, through most of the day when the weather is favorable. During the summer, from two to seven or eight hundred persons, visit Bath—they fell short of three hundred when I was there—but more were expected—they come from the tide waters of the Chesapeak, where intermittents prevail, from Alexandria, Gorgetown, Baltimore, Philadelphia, &c. Persons with rheumatic and bilious complaints usually get relief if they live temperately. The surrounding country is rough and barren, with some fruitful spots interspersed, the salubrity of the air in the neighbourhood of the mountains, makes a few weeks residence here, beneficial to most persons in ill health.

The accommodations are as good as could be expected where many persons are crouded into a small village, of from fifteen to twenty houses.—There are four or five good boarding houses—the price at present six dollars a week; some families take houses and provide for themselves. The mornings and evenings are cool at Bath, as the situation would lead you to conclude. It is excessively warm in the middle of the day, when the rays of the meridian sun fall directly upon the spot.

It is not invalids alone who frequent this place. In returning from Bath, it is often enquired, "who was the Belle this season?" Hymeneal treaties have often their preliminaries settled, or at least negociations are commenced. They have balls pretty frequently; and parties occasionally dine at Hancock, a village on the banks of the Maryland side of the Potowmac, not two miles distant from the Pennsylvania line.

* On trouve dans les archives de l'archeveque d'Embrue, des actes dans lesquels des Ducs de Savoie prennent le titre de cellerier de Monseigneur, N'est ce pas un beau titre pour un prince?—Etat moral, physique & politique de la Maison de Savoie.

The very rational amuſemeet of gambling, may here be enjoyed in all its delightful variety. Perſons have often the exquiſite ſatisfaction, after paſſing two or three ſleepleſs nights to find themſelves diſburthened of ſix, eight, ten, or twelve hundred dollars, according to a man's purſe or reſolution. The looſers at times raiſe the cry of cheats, ſharpers, &c. There are to be ſure no laws even in the Common-wealth of Virginia that compel a man to riſque his money in this way; but the laws of cuſtom, and the inebriating charms of play, bind, ſeduce, and lead captive.

Yours, &c.

PHILADELPHIA,

MONDAY EVENING, SEPTEMBER 26, 1796.

Yeſterday ſailed for France, Gen. Pinckney, Miniſter Plenipotentiary from the United States, to the French Republic, in the room of Mr. Monroe, who has been recalled.

The appointment of Gen. Pinckney to that important ſtation muſt afford ſincere pleaſure to all thoſe who are acquainted with his patriotic virtues and eminent abilities. While his dereliction of a moſt lucrative practice in the profeſſion of the law, evinces his patriotiſm in ſacrificing private advantages and domeſtic eaſe to the public good; the ſelection of ſuch a fit character by the Preſident, manifeſts his judicious, vigilant, and unceaſing care of the public good.

The friends of American INDEPENDENCE, and of a cordial friendſhip with France, may now congratulate themſelves, that at the ſame time that our miniſter will exert his beſt and ſincereſt endeavors to tighten the bonds of friendſhip between the two republics, on liberal and honourable principles, having always manifeſted a lively intereſt for the French revolution, and a warm attachment to the nation, he will never loſe ſight of thoſe national principles which have ever characterized him in his military and political career, and which will never ſuffer him to be either the dupe of Foreign intrigues, or the tool of domeſtic faction.

A Commencement for conferring Degrees in the College of New-Jerſey, is to be held at Princeton next Wedneſday.

Mr. Chalmers has lately made his firſt appearance on the Boſton Theatre, in the part of Vapid, in the Dramatiſt. In the Columbian Centinel it is ſaid to have been "the moſt ſplendid diſplay of Theatric talent ever witneſſed by a Boſton auditory." It is generally allowed that in Puff, Vapid, Goldfinch, and many other characters in this line, Chalmers is without a rival.

A few days ſince a ſmall brig was launched at Kenſington, with all her maſts, yards and ſpars ſtanding, ſails bent, &c. Having a conſiderable diſtance to run before ſhe ſtruck the water, the ſpectacle was rendered very pleaſing. The novelty of the ſight, attracted ſeveral hundred ſpectators.

One day laſt week, as a gunner near the middle ferry, was knocking the flint of his gun, laying over a rail, it went off and wounded a child who was paſſing the road, very dangerouſly; the charge being duck ſhot.

A French gentleman is in town, from New-York, who left St. Croix the 4th inſt. He informs that he dined on board the Vengeance Cutter, belonging to Capt. Barney, the day before he left the Iſland. The Captain of the Cutter informed him, that he ſailed from Cadiz bay, in company with the French and Spaniſh fleets, on the fourth of Auguſt, and that he kept company with them two days.

A letter from St. Croix of the 4th inſt. mentions that the Vengeance Cutter had arrived there with a very valuable prize.

SALEM, (Maſſ.) Sept. 20.

We are happy to ſee from the preſs, the ſermon of the reverend E. Hubbard, of Marblehead, upon the death of colonel Orne. We know how falſe funeral panegyries commonly are. But the modeſty of our preacher could not be ſile t in the praiſe of a man, who was an honour to human nature. His character has been drawn with that exactneſs, that we all ſeize the likeneſs, and, we muſt preſerve for our children, this pious and affectionate teſtimony and reſpect for the deceaſed. We ſhall read it to our children, when we inſtruct them to be good men. To urge their virtues, we ſhall tell them to be as good as colonel Orne, as diligent, as public ſpirited, and as ſincere a friend to their country.

By a letter from Newbury-Port, from the health committe, on Saturday laſt, we are aſſured, that no perſon was then ſick of a malignant fever, and the town was ſcarcely ever known to be in greater health.

From India—the lateſt.

By an arrival yeſterday at Salem, in 115 days from Calcutta, papers were received to the 14th of May. In the following note, which accompanied the papers when forwarded to us, is a good ſummary of their contents.

Meſſrs. Young & Minns,

I herewith ſend you ſeveral Calcutta papers, this day received by the Ketch Eliza in 115 days paſſage. You will find in them, the conditions of the ſurrender of Columbo, in the Iſland of Ceylon, [which however exhibits nothing intereſting to Americans;] An account of a fleet having ſailed againſt the Spice iſlands; and information, that with a little coerſion, the diſputes between the company's troops had been put an end to.

To ſhew the great improvements made in the navigation of our country, it may not be amiſs to inform the public, That the Ketch Eliza has performed two ſucceſſive voyages to Calcutta, in leſs time than has heretofore been thought poſſible; and both theſe voyages entirely againſt the Monſoon having to beat into the bay of Bengal, and out in like manner, the ſeaſon changing while ſhe lay in Port. The firſt voyage was effected in 9 months and 14 days—the laſt, in 9 months and 6 days, including a ſtoppage at the Iſland of Bourbon

BOSTON, September 21.

The public have before been informed of the capture of the brig Friendſhip, captain Smith, from Aux Cayes, for Baltimore. The following is the decree of the vice admiralty court at Halifax; and though apparently fair, is pronounced by captain Smith, to contain as much vice as could iſſue from any vice court in Bermuda.

Nova-Scotia, Court of Vice Admiralty. } In the name of God. Amen.

(L. S.) WE Richard Bulkeley, Eſq. Judge and commiſſary of his majeſty's court of vice-admiralty, for the province of Nova Scotia aforeſaid, and the maritime parts thereof,

Having maturely conſidered the merits of a certain libel, exhibited to this court by Sampſon Salter Blowers, Eſq. his majeſty's attorney-general and advocate in the ſaid court, who proſecutes for and in behalf as well as of his majeſty, as the honourable Alexander Foreſter Cochran, captain and commander of his majeſty's ſhip of war Thetis, and the other officers and crew of the ſaid ſhip, and Henry Wemyſs, Eſq. captain and commander of his majeſty's ſhip of war Prevoyante, and the other officers and crews of the ſaid ſhips, reſpectively:—Wherein the ſaid attorney-general, among other matters, alledges and ſets forth:—

That the ſaid Henry Wemyſs and Alexander Foreſter Cochran, being cruiſing in concert and together, in and with his majeſty's ſaid ſhips of war, under their reſpective commands as aforeſaid, being part of the ſquadron under the command of vice-admiral Murray, on the fourteenth day of July laſt, on the high ſeas, about three leagues to the eaſtward of Cape Henry, on the coaſt of North-America, they fell in with and ſeized as prize, a certain brigantine called the Friendſhip, of the burthen of one hundred and fifty-five tons, under the command of one Thomas Smith, and being loaded with a cargo on board, conſiſting of ſugars, coffee, cotton, molaſſes and other merchandizes, and having ſent the ſame brigantine and cargo into the harbour of Halifax aforeſaid, for adjudication.—And further ſtating, that the ſaid brigantine Friendſhip, and all and ſingular the goods and merchandize, her cargo on board at the time of her ſeizure aforeſaid, belonged to France, or to ſome perſon or perſons being ſubjects of France, or inhabiting within ſome of the territories of France. And all the papers and writings found on board ſaid ſhip, at the time of capture, having been read and conſidered, together with the claims filed in this cauſe, and the examinations taken in preparatory, under the ſtanding interrogatories, and every other matter and thing requiſite and neceſſary for a fair and impartial hearing and trial of the premiſes, having duly attended to, We do pronounce this our definitive ſentence and decree thereon, as follows:—

We do order, adjudge and decree, all and ſingular, that part of the cargo on board ſaid brigantine ſhipped by Edward Hall, and Denton, or either of them, as alſo the goods ſtated to be the property of Peter Borton, to be lawful prize to his majeſty; and we do hereby condemn the ſame as ſuch accordingly: and we do further adjudge and decree, That all and ſingular, that part of the cargo, claimed in behalf of Pettingill and Smith, together with that that part of the cargo claimed by Thomas Smith, as his private adventure, and alſo the private adventure of the mate; and one of the other crew's adventure, and alſo that part of the cargo claimed in behalf of Seth Sanger, together with the ſaid brigantine Friendſhip, her boats, ſtores, tackle, apparel, and furniture, to be reſtored, and delivered up to the claimants, they paying ſuch coſts in the premiſes, as may be taxed and allowed by this court. And we do order and decree, That all and ſingular the remainder of the cargo on board, be unloaded, from the ſaid brigantine, and depoſited in ſome ſafe and convenient warehouſe, under the joint cuſtody of the marſhall of this court, or his deputy, and the collector and comptroller of his majeſty's cuſtoms, and under the inſpection of the agent for the captors and claimants, ſubject to our further order and decree thereon, or further proof of the property be produced, either on the part of the captors or claimants, or otherwiſe as the court may decree right and juſt on the premiſes.

Given under our hand, and the ſeal of the ſaid court at Halifax, the 20th day of Auguſt, 1796, and in the 36th year of his Majeſty's reign.

RICHARD BULKELY.

C. MORRIS, jun. D. Regiſter.

A true copy.

On the above truly formal, and as it would appear from the caption, ſacred State-Paper (which the aboriginals of our country very pointedly call Pawwaws) the following obſervations may be made:—That that part of the cargo ſhipped by Hall and Denton, was bona fide the property of Stewart and Son, of Baltimore; and the following extracts from intercepted letters of Capt. Cochran to his agents Foreman and Graſſie, will ſhew on what grounds it has been condemned—

"On board his Majeſty's ſhip Thetis, at ſea, Auguſt 6, 1796.

"On the 14th of laſt month, being in company with his Majeſty's ſhip Prevoyante, we detained and ſent into Halifax, the brig Friendſhip, of Newburyport, from Aux-Cayes, bound to Baltimore, laden with ſugar, coffee, &c. &c. all of which is on freight, and the greateſt part ſaid to belong to Stewart and Sons, of Baltimore, who from being Britiſh ſubjects and trading with the enemies of Great-Britain, make their property liable to confiſcation; this doctrine has been confirmed by the Lords of Appeal, in the caſe of the ſchooner Robert, condemned at Bermuda, taken on her paſſage from Guadaloupe, and belonging to Meſſrs. Patterſons, of Baltimore.

"I ſuſpect that the remainder of the cargo is French property, covered or belonging to Britiſh ſubjects reſident at Aux Cayes, which would equally make it attachable.

"The bearer will give you every particular information which ſhould be lodged in the Court of Admiralty, and a copy of that or any other you may procure, you will oblige me by forwarding to Bermuda."

Capt. Cochran then refers to certificates and informations incloſed in his letters, which are neceſſary to be communicated to the perſons concerned only, and concludes—

"I beg you will communicate this, and the incloſed to Meſſrs.* Blowers and Uniache. I hope ſoon to ſend you ſome certificates of conſequence, and am, &c.

Extract from the information.

Denton and Hall, of Aux Cayes, the former Engliſh; Stewart and Sons, of Baltimore, are Scotch.

"The certificates to be produced in evidence, and the bearer to be moſt pointedly interrogated."

* One is Attorney-General, the other Solicitor-General.

Mr. Sanger, of Baltimore, who handed us the above, had on board the Friendſhip a conſiderable quantity of coffee proceeds of a copper bottom ſchooner and cargo ſold at Aux-Cayes. His property would have been condemned, he ſuppoſed, had he not arrived at Halifax, very opportunely, on the day of trial; the informers have given Capt. Cochran a falſe ſtatement, on which the Solicitor-General did not fail to vociferate in a declamation of two hours and an half. Mr. Sanger is a native of Boſton, and committed no other miſdemeanor, than to have parted with his ſchooner for a price with which he was pleaſed.

PARIS, 19 Meſſidor (July 7.)

By letters from Straſbourgh, we are aſſured, that General Wurmſer, has ordered the army of Conde, to march into Auſtrian Briſgau, becauſe he perceives the deſperate condition of the emigrants, who have nothing but death to hope for from our troops, and he thinks they but animate them. The ſame letter ſpeaks of the army of Conde being fifteen or ſixteen thouſand ſtrong, but we have never thought them more than eight or nine thouſand.

Letters from the North, are filled with the extreme embarraſſment of the Archduke Charles being obliged to abandon us part of his poſſeſſions near Duſſeldorf, to return to the Upper Rhine, fearing to ſee Jourdan repaſs again that river, while he has been obliged to detach a part of his army to ſtop the progreſs of Moreau, all the plans of the Auſtrian generals are deranged.

July 14.

Extract of a letter from Hildeſſeim (Germany) dated 30th June.

"Fifteen thouſand men of the combined army, for the defence of the line of neutrality, are arrived on the borders of the Weſer, where they have already had an opportunity to prove their uſefulneſs.

"A free corps of 500 men in Britiſh pay, and recruited at Pyrmont, wanted to paſs the Weſer; but the Preſident of the Congreſs of this place has given notice to the commandant of the corps that he could not, reminding him of the articles of neutrality. The commandant deſpiſing the advice of the Preſident, began during the night, to embark his troops; before the embarkation was complete, a detachment of 5,000 men arreſted the whole of the corps and diſarmed them, after which they conducted them out of the territory by the order of the Congreſs."

And approved notes, securing payment in either money or prizes, in ten days after drawing, will be received for any number not less than 30 tickets.

This Lottery will afford an elegant specimen of the private buildings to be erected in the City of Washington—Two beautiful designs are already selected for the entire fronts on two of the public squares; from these drawings it is proposed to erect two centre and four corner buildings, as soon as possible after this lottery is sold, and to convey them, when complete, to the fortunate adventurers, in the manner described in the scheme for the Hotel Lottery. A nett deduction of five per cent. will be made to defray the necessary expenses of printing, &c. and the surplus will be made a part of the fund intended for the National University, to be erected within the city of Washington.

The Drawing will commence as soon as the tickets are sold off.—The money prizes will be payable in thirty days after it is finished; and any prizes for which fortunate numbers are not produced within twelve months after the drawing is closed, are to be considered as given towards the fund for the University; it being determined to settle the whole business in a year from the ending of the drawing, and to take up the bonds given as security.

The real securities given for the payment of the Prizes, are held by the President and two Directors of the Bank of Columbia, and are valued at more than half the amount of the lottery.

The twenty four gentlemen who by appointment of the late Commissioners assisted in the management of the Hotel Lottery are requested to undertake this arduous task a second time on behalf of the public; a sufficient number of these having kindly accepted, it is hoped that the friends to a National University and the other federal objects may continue to favor the design.

By accounts received from the different parts of the Continent as well as from Europe, where the tickets have been sent for sale, the public are assured that the drawing will speedily commence, and that the care and caution unavoidably necessary to insure a safe disposal of the tickets, has rendered the short suspension indispensable.
